SPECIAL NOTICE.
Obituary Notices, Resolutions of Respect, Cards of Thanks, and notices of church and charitable entertainments and the like, when an admission fee is charged, will be charged for at the rate of one-half cent a word, and no charge for the insertion of such notices in the case of persons who are deceased, or charged to responsible parties ordering the same.

FRIDAY, MAY 23, 1913

No more county, district or state conventions in Ohio. All nominations will hereafter be made at primaries.

Candidates for municipal and township offices will be nominated September 2 and voted for at the November election.

The short ballot is not looked upon with favor by many Ohio men prominent in politics. This thing of appointing most of the officers, it is claimed, is not what it is cracked up to be.

Former United States Senator Dick of Akron hopes to get back into the senate but his desire will hardly be gratified. Former Gov. Myron T. Herrick is also said to have designs upon the seat occupied by Senator Burton who is dead anxious to stay right where he is.

It is just possible that a democrat may be elected to congress from the nineteenth district composed of Ash-tabula, Trumbull and Mahoning counties even if the republicans and progressives patch up their differences and present a solid front. Stranger things have happened.

Senator Burton has renewed his announced determination to block confirmation of appointments of democrats to fill Ohio postoffices in all cases where the name of a democrat appears on postmaster lists only to have his nominations held up in the senate by the democrats last winter. The best Burton can do, however, is to block the appointments until the close of the special session of congress when recess appointments will be made.

YOUNGSTOWN

Albert Unger, an iron worker, was stricken with heart trouble Tuesday night and was dead before a doctor could be called.

Motorcycle cops are running in automobile speed kings who are being made to pay the freight for violating the law.

Judge W. S. Anderson has appointed a new jury commission which is composed of Fred Jensen, E. S. Schlegel and J. P. Collier of Youngstown and W. W. Ovington of Mahoning. Jensen served on the commission last year. The commission will meet next Monday and begin selecting grand and petit jurors for the coming year.

While defending his son last Sunday C. L. Null struck Joseph Hutchinson with his fist and the man died. At the coroner's inquest Tuesday a verdict of justifiable homicide was rendered.

Miss Hattie Scott, injured in an automobile accident Saturday evening, died Monday.

Thomas S. Flynn, for the past 18 years secretary of the organization of the American Federation of Labor, is planning to retire from the labor movement. For 40 years Mr. Flynn has been affiliated with the labor unions as member and official. During his career as organizer Mr. Flynn has managed several strikes in Youngstown. A desire to retire from active work after a futile attempt to organize the steel workers in the non-union mills has caused his decision to give up his post.

Woodrow Wilson on the Tariff.

As President Wilson is the prominent head of tariff revisionists, being practically responsible for whatever tariff legislation may be enacted by the present Congress, just what his views are on the subject should prove interesting to men of affairs in every political camp.

The Pittsburgh Dispatch has secured exclusive rights for this territory for a series of articles by the President, expressing his ideas in minutiae on the uppermost topic in the public mind.

These articles have never before been printed in newspaper or periodical. Now that the tariff is in the limelight of publicity, everyone will want to know first hand, just what President Wilson's views may be. The series will be printed in the Sunday issue of The Dispatch. See that you get it next Sunday and regularly thereafter. Don't miss an article. Order from your newsdealers today.

IDORA CASINO OPENING

The season at the Idora park Casino, which is to be managed this summer by John R. Elliott, will open next Sunday afternoon and evening. The show will include five vaudeville acts and the bill has for a headliner the versatile young comedian, Herman Timberg. Mr. Timberg has been engaged at what is probably the largest salary ever paid a single artist for appearing at Idora park. With his big personal following and his worth as a drawing card because of his exceptional talents, this clever young star will prove a wonderful attraction for Idora.

Copeland and Walsh, rag-time singers, dancers and musicians; Mlle. Lafayette, a charming singing comedienne with a powerful voice; and the Sidonias in "The Laugh Factory"; and the Zigler Bros., European gymnasts are also features of the opening bill at the Casino.

SEES REAL JUSTICE IN TARIFF REVISION

Congressman John J. Whitacre Asserts That the Underwood Bill is Fair to All.

Washington, May 21—Declaring the desire of the Democratic party to put in operation a tariff fair to all and telling of investigations made with a view to learning tariff needs of the country, Congressman John J. Whitacre yesterday outlined his reasons for supporting the Underwood measure, writes Ben Allen to the Cleveland Plain Dealer. His statement concerns more particularly the tariff affecting the pottery industry which represents heavy investments in Mr. Whitacre's district.

Whitacre Statement.
Mr. Whitacre said: "The declaration of Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee of the house of representatives, that reductions of wages made on alleged account of tariff legislation will be investigated by federal experts, and the rendering by President Wilson of an ultimatum to the pottery industry in response to a statement of the pottery manufacturers that the proposed Underwood rates on pottery would inevitably cause a reduction of wages in that industry, and the intention to provide the president with conditions in the pottery industry, are the first steps to secure and keep a downward tariff revision that will be fair to all concerned."

Honest and Dishonest Manufacturers.
"Honest manufacturers need have no fear, for if the investigation discloses the fact that the reduction in tariff must certainly result in wage reduction the administration will be quick to change the rate so as to prevent injury. This much was assured to the country by Leader Underwood on the house floor just the other day. "Dishonest manufacturers, however, will not be permitted to seize upon the opportunity to bring about wage reductions and consequent business stagnation for the purpose of influencing the elections of 1914. All bluff will be promptly called. Honest men need have no fear and dishonest men can expect no favor. The manufacturers, the laborers and the consumers each alike have rights which entitle them to fair treatment."

Promise No Injury.
"The Democratic party is pledged to a downward revision of the tariff which will do no injury. It is for the securing of this sort of a revision, and the keeping of the revision when secured, that the investigations are necessary. Tariff making heretofore has been by those who stood to gain financially by an exclusive tariff—tariff making now, for the first time in many years, is by those who are determined to give a square deal to all alike."

"In private life I have been for twenty years engaged in the manufacturing business, and I have, therefore, a personal knowledge of its joys and sorrows. The industry in which I am interested, however, is not in any particular concerned with tariff rates, and since tariff cuts no figure with me in private business, I am not directly financially or otherwise interested in any rate covered by this bill."

First Free Congressman.
"I have lived substantially all my life in the eighteenth Ohio congressional district. Not in fifty years or more has any man represented that district in congress who was free from obligations to the so-called protective interests."

"I am under no obligations to serve or represent any particular class. I can truthfully, and I ought modestly to say, that I represent all the people and not some. Not that I received all or even a majority of the votes, for I did not. If I serve only those who voted for me I am far in the minority."

"If I owe the so-called protective industries of the district anything it is a series of good stiff punches over and under and all about without regard to belts or rules, for they spent their money freely, and howled themselves hoarse vociferously in an endeavor to keep me at home. I am, therefore, a free lance and I may vote as I please."

Holds No Resentment.
"I would not, however, be a fit man to be in congress if I allowed any feelings of resentment to control me, or a desire to get even with, or punish those who opposed my election. That was their right, nay their duty, in so far as they truthfully felt that I could not and would not be a fit legislator."

"Therefore represent a district which heretofore sent protectionists of the strictest sort to the house of representatives. The protected interests of the district have heretofore enjoyed the privilege of fixing their own rates in previous tariff laws because they controlled the congressmen who were bound by principle (as I believe) as well as by interest (as I know) to get high rates for their people."

How Predecessors Worked.
"These congressmen operating in conjunction with like other congressmen from like other districts, controlled by like other constituencies were the authors and finishers of a system of tariff privileges which reached its high crest in the Payne-Aldrich law of 1909."

"This congressmen operated by what was and is known as the log-rolling method in getting results. The eighteenth Ohio congressman was perfectly willing to permit the congressmen financed by the button industry to name the rate on buttons, and the congressmen financed by the lumber industry, the lead and zinc owners, and the sugar and cotton industries to name the rates on their own home products, provided only that the eighteenth Ohio congressman could fix the rate on pottery."

"And so tariff laws were framed. Each got for himself what he wanted, and each allowed all the others the same privilege, and no question asked. Just exactly as the Democratic members of the sixty-second congress took $75,000 or $100,000 for a public building in his district, without regard to the public necessities, the private proprietors, or the plight of the great public and principles of the tariff party whose name was disgraced and dishonored by the act."

Scientific Reasoning.
"By examining particulars, by the close observation of isolated things, scientists reason to general conclusions and, according to their observations, are close and accurate, and their reasoning is correct, do they arrive at correct conclusions. Now I propose to take this particular item of pottery rates and subject it to such scrutiny and observation as I may be capable of, so as to arrive at some conclusion with respect to it and determine, if possible, what ought to be done. The pottery rate is a typical example of tariff rates fixed by those who profit or exist by tariff rates."

"We Democrats objected to the pottery naming their own tariff rates and by the Underwood bill propose to change the rates which they have named, but in doing so we have laid down certain principles for our guidance and as notice to the people of our proposed method of procedure. The Baltimore convention declared: 'We recognize that our system of tariff taxation is intimately connected with the business of the country and we favor the ultimate attainment of the principles we advocate by legislation that will not injure or destroy legitimate industry.'"

What Potters should Have.
"President Wilson gave expression to the same idea in his message of May 8, as follows:
It would be unwise to move toward this end and heading, with reckless haste or with strokes that cut at the very root of what has grown up and been long process and at our own invitation. It does not alter a thing to upset it, and break it and deprive it of a chance to change."

It destroys it. We must make changes in our fiscal laws, in our fiscal system, whose objects are development, a more free and wholesome development, not revolution or upset or confusion."

"Now in the light of these self-imposed rules of procedure what is our duty? Granted, if you please, that the pottery industry is a case of 'a cat in a hat in Maine,' in the words of the president, 'it has grown up amongst us by long process and at our own invitation.'"

"This industry is there with about $5,500,000 invested; and some several thousands of men, absolutely dependent upon its profitable existence and continuance. Granted further that they heretofore had their own way in this matter. We have been commissioned now to correct whatever of wrong and injustice they have placed upon the consuming public, but, in undertaking to correct this wrong, we have placed upon ourselves certain self-imposed agreements—namely, we have represented to the people that the necessary reduction in those rates must be made without injury to legitimate business."

A Regular Tariff Commission.
"This is the warning of authority to the ways and means committee. In reducing the rate on pottery from 55 and 60 per cent. to 35 and 40 per cent. has the committee observed the limitation on their authority? The corps of experts of the department of commerce is now at work on the potteries of East Liverpool, and from them we will have definite facts that will clear up the whole situation. The potters are co-operating with the inspectors, but, in the assurance of Chairman Underwood, uttered on the floor of the house:

When the department of commerce reports after a careful, disinterested and honest investigation that an injustice has been done either to an industry or to the labor employed in that industry, you may rest assured that this side of the house will rectify any wrong which has been done."

"This is fair. Can the honest business man ask for more? I may venture the prediction that the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, now being utilized for investigation purposes, will be a thorough-going tariff commission that in the future will work hand in hand with the house of representatives in tariff changes. Protected interests in the future will be asked for a tariff commission and they have it. Those that have an honest case should welcome these investigators."
